Testimonial

I was recently fortunate enough to attend a taster session run by Impact Skills in relation to Executive Presentation Skills Training. The session was highly informative, interactive and made me personally think about how “back in the office” my peer group and I could have so much more impact in the delivery information via presentations and business pitches.

As a result I engaged in conversations with Laith who was able to quickly understand the needs of the small Exec level leadership team I referred to, and also got a grasp on the challenges we face in our unique industry sector. As a result Impact Skills were able to provide a bespoke one-day training course for a team of seven to attend.

The event was delivered by an exceptional trainer Lucinda Bowen. Lucinda has a natural flair for building credibility and buy-in quickly and her skills at not only training and facilitating, but also getting the best out of such a potentially challenging team of delegates is second to none.

Internal feedback has been so positive and a by-product of the training day has been for the team to commit to regular self and peer group reviews and collective coaching sessions ahead of future presentations.

The training day also enabled to team of delegates to focus on a singular topic outside of the normal working day and therefore as we all “went on a journey of self improvement” everyone came away feeling the time they had invested was invaluable, and an unforeseen benefit was much consideration of our own team dynamics and how we can have more impact as a group across our organisation.

I would encourage any business leader or company to invest the time in such a program as the benefits are multiple and everyone, regardless of prior experience, previous training in the subject matter or existing levels of confidence will benefit and a more focussed high-impact approach will be adopted going forward.

We look forward to working with Impact Skills again as we consider how else they can provide such value to our organisation and would not hesitate to recommend them.
